

The U.S. Army Security Assistance Command leads the Army Materiel Command's Security Assistance Enterprise. The command develops and manages security assistance programs and FMS cases to build partner capacity, support geographic Combatant Command engagement strategies and strengthen U.S. global partnerships.

USASAC implements approved U.S. Army security assistance programs, including FMS of defense articles and services to eligible foreign governments. USASAC is responsible for life cycle management of FMS cases, from pre-Letter of Request, to development, execution and closure.

To carry out the Army security assistance mission, USASAC relies on all AMC Life Cycle Management Commands, as well as other Department of Defense agencies and U.S. industry to support its processes. Each sale of equipment to overseas customers comprises the same "total package" of quality materiel, facilities, spare parts, training, publications, technical documentation, sustainment and other services that AMC provides to U.S. Army units.

The U.S. Army Security Assistance Training Management Organization, a subordinate command of USASAC, facilitates deployment of training teams throughout the world to provide training tailored to a country for equipment purchased through FMS. SATMO's motto is "Training the World, One Soldier at a Time," and the program consistently has teams deployed worldwide.

USASAC manages more than 5,400 FMS cases with a total value exceeding $172 billion.

The U.S. Army Security Assistance Command is responsible for managing security assistance programs and Foreign Military Sales for the Army. USASAC serves as the primary entry point for U.S. Army materiel-and service-related Foreign Military Sales requirements and is known as the "Army's Face to the World."
